Here Boy!: Step-by-step To A Stunning Recall From Your Brilliant Family Dog (Essential Skills For A Brilliant Family Dog Book 4)

Synopsis

Does your dog go deaf as soon as you take the lead off? Learn how to have your dog spin on a sixpence and race back to you when you call or stop panicking when your dog sees another dog or a squirrel or enjoy walks without stress This book unravels the mysteries of getting your dog to fly back to you - whatever else may be happening! How good will you feel when people watch in astonishment as your dog leaves balls, other dogs, and rabbits to shoot back to you? Hard to believe? Maybe. Possible? Most definitely! Fun? Very much so. (If it's not fun, your dog won't do it. So there's lots of fun!) Find the secrets to a stunning recall in this fourth book in the series of Essential Skills for a Brilliant Family Dog.

Customer Reviews

The first couple chapters were encouraging but when the training games started requiring more than one person, this book became useless to me. There are more training games that demand at least two and, in at least one instance, more than two people to execute. If you live alone and look to this book for recall training, you're "barking" up the wrong tree.

Beverley impresses me with her advice. I write about dog health care (Scared Poopless: The Straight Scoop on Dog Care) but training is not my area of expertise. I have read everything available to improve the behavior of my two little rescued Maltese boys. Beverley has top information at a great price.

Love these books have gained peace of mind and a happy dog. Enjoyed all four books and wish there were more.

I want to thank Beverley for her wonderful books! My Siberian husky is very good at many things, but our recall is very hit or miss. So I've been focusing on "Here, Boy". I'm taking it slowly, and today we moved outside to my back garden. Naturally, just as we started, my next door neighbor's dog ran outside and started barking at the world. My husky stayed with me and kept playing the game. Hooray! I've also noticed that he checks in with me more often around the house, on leashed walks and in fenced areas when he's loose. I'm thrilled. I've been working on a recall for a long time, using techniques from great trainers, but something about her voice has connected for me and I feel quite hopeful that there will come a time when I call my husky and he comes running regardless of distractions. Fingers crossed!
