The Saints Of Santo Domingo: Dominican Resistance In The Age Of Neocolonialism

Synopsis

The Saints of Santo Domingo: Dominican Resistance in the Age of Neocolonialism tells the story of a generation of Dominican warriors, who surrendered their energies, and often their lives, in the struggle against devastating poverty, glaring social inequality and state violence. Danny Shaw, a professor of Latin American and Caribbean studies at John Jay College of Criminal Justice and Eugenio María de Hostos College, recounts the lives of the persecuted leaders of the clandestine FALPO and MPD. Danny Shaw is an internationalist and anti-imperialist leader in the United States who has lived alongside and organized with social movements in the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Central America, Brazil and Western Africa. Guided by a profound sense of loss and duty, Shaw seeks to rescue from oblivion the example of Chu, Furi, Claridad, Mira Cielo and other larger than life Dominican fighters, assassinated by the neocolonial Dominican state. Among the other themes explored in his timely book are Haitian-Dominican unity, forced migration and the everyday survival of the exiled Dominican community in New York City. The Saints of Santo Domingo is a must read for any student of Dominican history trying to bridge the gap between the murderous regimes of Trujillo and Balaguer and the present day repression of the popular, anti-imperialist movement.

Danny Shaw teaches Latin American and Caribbean Studies and Race, Ethnicity, Class and Gender at the City University of New York. He holds a Masters in International Affairs from the School of International and Public Affairs at Columbia University. Born and raised by a single mother in Brockton, Massachusetts, he has lived in the Bronx for the past 20 years. He is fluent in Spanish, Haitian Kreyol, Portuguese, Cape Verdean Kreolu and has a fair command of French. Working and organizing in forty seven different countries opened his spirit to countless testimonies about the inhumanity of the international economic system. He is a Golden Gloves boxer, fighting twice in Madison Square Garden for the NYC heavyweight championship. A student of boxing, yoga and nutritional healing, he also teaches workshops on these subjects. Danny Shaw works in the national leadership of the ANSWER Coalition (Act Now to Stop War and End Racism) to keep young people out of the military and prison industrial complex. He is a mentor to many, guiding people through life's nutritional, ideological, social and emotional landmines. He is the father of two young Life Warriors, Ernesto Rafael and Caua Amaru. He is the managing editor of LiberationSchool.org and the author of five books: 365 Days of Resistance, Shedding that which is Not Us: A Working-Class Guide to Life Foods Training and Healing, The Saints of Santo Domingo: Dominican Resistance in the Age of Neocolonialism, My Son Blazes within Me: Reflections on a Poor "white" Family's Survival, and Diving over Infinite Horizons: Journal Entries of an Internationalist. Danny has also authored blogs and articles on Latin American history, boxing and nutrition, among other topics. He can be contacted at DRS33@Columbia.edu

Don't buy, it's a self published book that is poorly written. Not real scholarship. Don't waste your time.

A great book, a lot history about the Dominican Republic and some of the revolutionary figures. Also the author touch on the current social- political state of the Dominican Republic. I love it!

Loved it soooo much!

Great book professor Shaw. Pure reality.
