Toolmaker Thomas Lie-Nielsen brings a unique perspective to the subject of sharpening. He started making hand tools in 1981, after working in New York City at tool dealer Garrett Wade. Lie-Nielsen Toolworks now makes several dozen different high-end planes and saws, based on traditional designs.

The only thing better for sharpening is the Veritas power sharpening system. The best thing to sharpen are Lie-Nielsen tools.

Book does everything it promises. One can come away with a good understanding of the sharpening process the resources out there as well as where they can be purchased.
