

The book was found

Lailah's Lunchbox: A Ramadan Story

Synopsis

*Notable Social Studies Trade Book For Young People 2016, a cooperative Project of the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS) and the Children's Book Council**Featured Book of the Month, Anti-Defamation League**American Library Association Notable Book for Children 2016**Skipping Stones Honor 2016**International Literacy Association Choices Reading List*
Lailah is in a new school in a new country, thousands of miles from her old home, and missing her old friends. When Ramadan begins, she is excited that she is finally old enough to participate in the fasting but worried that her classmates won't understand why she doesn't join them in the lunchroom. Lailah solves her problem with help from the school librarian and her teacher and in doing so learns that she can make new friends who respect her beliefs. This gentle, moving story from first-time author Reem Faruqi comes to life in Lea Lyon's vibrant illustrations. Lyon uses decorative arabesque borders on intermittent spreads to contrast the ordered patterns of Islamic observances with the unbounded rhythms of American school days. Fountas & Pinnell Level N

Book Information

Lexile Measure: 590 (What's this?)

Hardcover: 32 pages

Publisher: Tilbury House Publishers; 1 edition (May 1, 2015)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0884484319

ISBN-13: 978-0884484318

Product Dimensions: 9.4 x 0.5 x 10.3 inches

Shipping Weight: 7.2 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 5.0 out of 5 stars 33 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #124,752 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #6 in Books > Children's Books > Literature & Fiction > Religious Fiction > Muslim #27 in Books > Children's Books > Holidays & Celebrations > Religious #60 in Books > Children's Books > Literature & Fiction > Religious Fiction > Other Religious Fiction

Age Range: 5 - 8 years

Grade Level: 1 - 7

Customer Reviews

K-Gr 3 • Lailah recently moved from Abu Dhabi to Peachtree City, GA, and while she misses her friends back in the Middle East, she is very excited to be old enough to fast during Ramadan. However, being new is one thing, but being different is another. What if her class doesn't know what Ramadan is? What if she is the only one fasting? Lailah falters when it is time to give Mrs. Penworth a note asking that she be excused from lunch, and she has to endure the tempting smells of food and kind offers of her classmates to share lunch. After escaping to the foodless library, the school librarian encourages Lailah to write down her feelings and share them with her teacher. After all, who knows what could come of sharing her culture? The large, often full-page watercolor illustrations provide gentle details that add depth to the text. A note and glossary round out the story, giving context from the author's life and information about Islamic culture. Fans of Patricia Polacco will enjoy this heartfelt tale. VERDICT A solid addition for libraries in need of modern Ramadan stories. —Brittany Staszak, St. Charles Public Library, IL

—A lovely classroom-friendly introduction to the Muslim month of fasting! —Ruhksana Khan, award-winning author and storyteller

I read the story to my daughter on the morning of April 18th, a morning many of us will remember with the Houston floods. Time had stopped in our household, schools were closed and the children sought extra outlets. And so I read the story, though admittedly I was distracted by the flooding, my own pending work deliverables and a unexpected day off schedule. Later that evening, as the waters abated and we readied for bed, my daughter asked me to reread the story. Odd, I thought. Didn't we read this book just 10 hours earlier. Ammi, please read it again. And so I consented, knowing full well that I had not given it the attention it deserved in the first pass. This time many things caught my eye—the beautiful water colored illustrations, the anxiety of the little girl, but also the power to overcome and find solutions. As I read, I watched my daughter's face. It was as though she was nodding, agreeing with each page, identifying with little Laila and the trials she faced. As I closed the book a second time in one very long, wet day, I realized just how much the story had helped and inspired my own little girl. Apart from giving this book to the local public library, we'll also be sharing it with her 2nd grade class next week in the local public school. We'll combine it with a simple Ramadan craft for the class. I pray that Laila's Lunchbox reaches many and is of benefit, as it has been for us.

This is a lovely book. It is relatable to children not only of the Muslim faith, but children from other faiths whose traditions do not follow the U.S. calendar which is largely based on Christian holidays. I am reminded of a Jewish family living in rural TN whose mama sent a note stating that the kids would be absent for some Jewish holiday. Those kids were the first known Jews. And really, at some point in our lives we are all different in some way. It is empowering to see a story about learning to talk about and handle differences and the emotions from those experiences.

Perfect Ramadan book for kids of all ages! My toddler loved it and asked me to re-read it several times and we talked about Laila's emotions throughout the book. It also reminded me of when I was the only Muslim in my school and had to fast and I felt left out so my dad came to pick me up during lunch time so I don't feel bad. Very well-written, simple, yet emotional. I'm an educator and highly recommend this book to be added to school libraries. Also if your child attends a non-Muslim school, this book is great to read to the classroom to help students understand what Ramadan is.

Really great book. Wonderful explanation of Ramadan fasting. Easy read and excellent knowledge based information children and adults can relate to. Makes a big difference when the author practicing the topic of the book. Can't say enough about it.

This book made it a little easier for my young son to relate to Ramadan. Now he can't stop talking about Lailah! I loved how the book not only talks about how Lailah experiences Ramadan, but also how she copes with adjusting to a new city and school. The illustrations were beautifully detailed and helped bring the words and Lailah's emotions to life. I wish I had this book as a child because it addresses both the excitement and sometimes apprehension that Muslim children often feel during Ramadan in the U.S. A wonderful addition to any home or school library.

Lailah felt like I did in school, unsure about how to explain important things to her teacher and classmates. Her school librarian gave her a helpful suggestion which allowed her to solve her problem. The book will not only help kids understand Ramadan but also give many kids a chance to identify with Lailah's dilemma of how to tell people she does not know very well about something she cares a lot about. I could see good discussions in the classroom coming from both themes.

I purchased this book as a gift for my granddaughter. Since she is only a 4 year old child who barely reads, my intention was to read it for her; therefore, I did so myself first to be better prepared and for curiosity about the book itself. I must say it was quite a delightful read, even for grandpas! Aside from it being such an interesting and very well written traditional classic with an introduction, body and conclusion, it was even more moving when I learned towards the end that it was based on the actual childhood story of the author herself. She simply, yet clearly, illustrated what a lot of the younger Muslim generations (and even some adults) go through in trying to explain to their fellow students (or co-workers) of other faiths about why they are not eating or even "just drinking water" with them during snack or lunch breaks.

This is a wonderful, touching book...a beautiful story beautifully illustrated. It has a very positive message for children. I would recommend this for children of all faiths, as it teaches them to have courage to observe their beliefs and explain them to others with pride.

Download to continue reading...

Lailah's Lunchbox: A Ramadan Story Lailah's Lunchbox How Did That Get in My Lunchbox?: The Story of Food (Exploring the Everyday) Fasting and Dates: A Ramadan and Eid-ul-Fitr Story (Festival Time) The Story of the Holy Prophet Muhammad: Ramadan Classics: 30 Stories for 30 Nights The Healthy Lunchbox: How To Plan, Prepare & Pack Unique Meals Kids Will Love How Lunchbox Jones Saved Me from Robots, Traitors, and Missy the Cruel Bento Cookbook: 25 Healthy Easy Bento Box Lunchbox Recipes The Best Homemade Kids' Lunches on the Planet: Make Lunches Your Kids Will Love with Over 200 Deliciously Nutritious Lunchbox Ideas - Real Simple, Real Ingredients, Real Quick! The Mix-and-match Lunchbox: Over 27,000 Wholesome Combos to Make Lunch Go Yum! Pandora's Lunchbox: How Processed Food Took Over the American Meal Lunchbox Jokes: Animals Food: 100 Fun Tear-out Notes for Kids (Lunchbox Jokes) Lunchbox Jokes: 100 Fun Tear-Out Notes for Kids Let's Celebrate Ramadan & Eid! (Muslim Festival of Fasting & Sweets) (Maya & Neel's India Adventure Series, Book 4) (Volume 4) My First Ramadan (My First Holiday) A Party in Ramadan Ramadan and Fasting Activity Book (Discover Islam Sticker Activity Books) Hassan and Aneesa Love Ramadan (Hassan & Aneesa) Under the Ramadan Moon

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help